The Compulsive Exercise Test (CET)

The CET is the first measure of problematic exercise that has been developed specifically for use in eating disorders research and assessment, and within a cognitive-behavioural framework. The following references are the key publications:

1. Taranis, L., Touyz, S., & Meyer, C. (2011). Disordered eating and exercise: Development and preliminary validation of the Compulsive Exercise Test (CET.) European Eating Disorders Review, 19, 256-268
2. Goodwin, H., Haycraft, E., Taranis, L. & Meyer, C. (2011). Psychometric evaluation of the Compulsive Exercise Test (CET) in an adolescent population: Links with eating psychopathology. European Eating Disorders Review.19, 269-279.
3. Meyer, C., Taranis, L., Goodwin, H., & Haycraft, E. (2011). Compulsive exercise and eating disorders. European Eating Disorders Review, 19 174-189.

The CET is a 24-item self-report measure designed to assess the core features of excessive exercise in the eating disorders; compulsivity (e.g. continuing to exercise despite illness or injury, lack of exercise enjoyment, the experience of extreme guilt when unable to exercise, making up for missed exercise sessions), affect regulation (e.g. the positive and negative reinforcement properties of exercise), weight and shape driven exercise (e.g. exercising solely to burn calories, compensatory exercise such as debting), and exercise rigidity (rigid adherence to a strict and repetitive exercise routine). Items were generated from a comprehensive appraisal of the eating disorder and excessive exercise literature, consultation with clinical eating disorder specialists, interviews with eating disorder patients, and a critical review of existing scales, and were included based on theoretical relevance and clinical specificity.

The CET uses a 6-point Likert scale anchored by 0 (never true) and 5 (always true) with higher scores indicative of greater pathology. Factor analysis revealed 5 factors explaining 63.5% of the variance. These were used to construct the 5 subscales of: avoidance and rule-driven behaviour, weight control exercise, mood improvement, lack of exercise enjoyment, and exercise rigidity. Initial validation results are encouraging with good internal consistency, content validity, and concurrent validity of the CET. The CET also demonstrates strong positive associations with measures of eating pathology and known correlates of disordered eating. It is concluded that the CET could be a reliable and valid instrument for use in both clinical and research settings.

CET Scoring Criteria:

- Items 8 and 12 are reverse scored.
- Subscale scores are obtained by summing the scores for all items in the subscale and dividing by the number of items (mean score).
- CET total score is calculated by summing the mean scores for all subscales.

Subscale Items

Avoidance and rule-driven behaviour	9, 10, 11, 15, 16, 20, 22, 23
Weight control exercise	2, 6, 8, 13, 18
Mood improvement	1, 4, 14, 17, 24
Lack of exercise enjoyment	5, 12, 21

Obsessive-Compulsive Inventory – Revised (OCI-R)

Administration & Scoring

The OCI-R is a short version of the OCD (Foa, Kozak, Salkovskis, Coles, & Amir, 1998) and is a self-report scale for assessing symptoms of Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder (OCD). It consists of 18 questions that a person endorses on a 5-point Likert scale.

Scores are generated by adding the item scores. The possible range of scores is 0-72. Mean score for persons with OCD is 28.0 ($SD = 13.53$). Recommended cutoff score is 21, with scores at or above this level indicating the likely presence of OCD.

Adult ADHD Self-Report Scale (ASRS-v1.1) Symptom Checklist

Instructions

The questions on the back page are designed to stimulate dialogue between you and your patients and to help confirm if they may be suffering from the symptoms of attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD).

Description: The Symptom Checklist is an instrument consisting of the eighteen DSM-IV-TR criteria. Six of the eighteen questions were found to be the most predictive of symptoms consistent with ADHD. These six questions are the basis for the ASRS v1.1 Screener and are also Part A of the Symptom Checklist. Part B of the Symptom Checklist contains the remaining twelve questions.

Instructions:

Symptoms

1. Ask the patient to complete both Part A and Part B of the Symptom Checklist by marking an X in the box that most closely represents the frequency of occurrence of each of the symptoms.
2. Score Part A. If four or more marks appear in the darkly shaded boxes within Part A then the patient has symptoms highly consistent with ADHD in adults and further investigation is warranted.
3. The frequency scores on Part B provide additional cues and can serve as further probes into the patient's symptoms. Pay particular attention to marks appearing in the dark shaded boxes. The frequency-based response is more sensitive with certain questions. No total score or diagnostic likelihood is utilized for the twelve questions. It has been found that the six questions in Part A are the most predictive of the disorder and are best for use as a screening instrument.

Impairments

1. Review the entire Symptom Checklist with your patients and evaluate the level of impairment associated with the symptom.
2. Consider work/school, social and family settings.
3. Symptom frequency is often associated with symptom severity, therefore the Symptom Checklist may also aid in the assessment of impairments. If your patients have frequent symptoms, you may want to ask them to describe how these problems have affected the ability to work, take care of things at home, or get along with other people such as their spouse/significant other.

History

1. Assess the presence of these symptoms or similar symptoms in childhood. Adults who have ADHD need not have been formally diagnosed in childhood. In evaluating a patient's history, look for evidence of early-appearing and long-standing problems with attention or self-control. Some significant symptoms should have been present in childhood, but full symptomology is not necessary.

The Value of Screening for Adults With ADHD

Research suggests that the symptoms of ADHD can persist into adulthood, having a significant impact on the relationships, careers, and even the personal safety of your patients who may suffer from it.¹⁻⁴ Because this disorder is often misunderstood, many people who have it do not receive appropriate treatment and, as a result, may never reach their full potential. Part of the problem is that it can be difficult to diagnose, particularly in adults.

The Adult ADHD Self-Report Scale (ASRS-v1.1) Symptom Checklist was developed in conjunction with the World Health Organization (WHO), and the Workgroup on Adult ADHD that included the following team of psychiatrists and researchers:

- Lenard Adler, MD
Associate Professor of Psychiatry and Neurology
New York University Medical School
- Ronald C. Kessler, PhD
Professor, Department of Health Care Policy
Harvard Medical School
- Thomas Spencer, MD
Associate Professor of Psychiatry
Harvard Medical School

As a healthcare professional, you can use the ASRS v1.1 as a tool to help screen for ADHD in adult patients. Insights gained through this screening may suggest the need for a more in-depth clinician interview. The questions in the ASRS v1.1 are consistent with DSM-IV criteria and address the manifestations of ADHD symptoms in adults. Content of the questionnaire also reflects the importance that DSM-IV places on symptoms, impairments, and history for a correct diagnosis.⁴

The checklist takes about 5 minutes to complete and can provide information that is critical to supplement the diagnostic process.

SCORING THE MOOD DISORDER QUESTIONNAIRE (MDQ)

The MDQ was developed by a team of psychiatrists, researchers and consumer advocates to address a critical need for timely and accurate diagnosis of bipolar disorder, which can be fatal if left untreated. The questionnaire takes about five minutes to complete, and can provide important insights into diagnosis and treatment. Clinical trials have indicated that the MDQ has a high rate of accuracy; it is able to identify seven out of ten people who have bipolar disorder and screen out nine out of ten people who do not.¹

A recent National DMDA survey revealed that nearly 70% of people with bipolar disorder had received at least one misdiagnosis and many had waited more than 10 years from the onset of their symptoms before receiving a correct diagnosis. National DMDA hopes that the MDQ will shorten this delay and help more people to get the treatment they need, when they need it.

The MDQ screens for Bipolar Spectrum Disorder, (which includes Bipolar I, Bipolar II and Bipolar NOS).

If the patient answers:

1. “Yes” to seven or more of the 13 items in question number 1;

AND

2. “Yes” to question number 2;

AND

3. “Moderate” or “Serious” to question number 3;

you have a positive screen. All three of the criteria above should be met. A positive screen should be followed by a comprehensive medical evaluation for Bipolar Spectrum Disorder.

Instructions

Please read this carefully

This questionnaire asks how you feel about your quality of life, health and other areas of your life. Please answer all the questions. If you are unsure about which response to give to a question, please choose the best one you can. There are no right or wrong answers. Your answer will be kept strictly confidential. Please keep in mind your standards, hopes, pleasures and concerns. We ask that you think about your life in the last two weeks.

For example, thinking about the last two weeks, a question might ask:

You should circle the number that best fits how much you have worries about your health over the last two weeks. So you would circle the number 4 if you worried about your health “very much”, or circle number 1 if you have worried “not at all” about your health. Please read each question, assess your feelings, and circle the number on the scale for each question that gives the best answer for you.

The APA is offering a number of “emerging measures” for further research and clinical evaluation. These patient assessment measures were developed to be administered at the initial patient interview and to monitor treatment progress. They should be used in research and evaluation as potentially useful tools to enhance clinical decision-making and not as the sole basis for making a clinical diagnosis. Instructions, scoring information, and interpretation guidelines are provided; further background information can be found in DSM-5. Instructions to Clinicians

This Personality Inventory for DSM-5—Brief Form (PID-5-BF)—Adult is a 25-item self-rated personality trait assessment scale for adults age 18 and older. It assesses 5 personality trait domains including negative affect, detachment, antagonism, disinhibition, and psychoticism, with each trait domain consisting of 5 items. The measure is completed by the individual prior to a visit with the clinician. If the individual receiving care is an adult age 18 and older with impaired capacity and unable to complete the form, a knowledgeable informant may complete the informant version of the measure (the PID-5-IRF). Each item on the PID-5-BF asks the individual receiving care to rate how well the item describes him or her generally.

Scoring and Interpretation

Each item on the measure is rated on a 4-point scale (i.e., 0=very false or often false; 1=sometimes or somewhat false; 2=sometimes or somewhat true; 3=very true or often true). The overall measure has a range of scores from 0 to 75, with higher scores indicating greater overall personality dysfunction. Each trait domain ranges in score from 0 to 15, with higher scores indicating greater dysfunction in the specific personality trait domain. The clinician is asked to review the score on each item on the measure during the clinical interview and indicate the raw score for each item in the section provided for “Clinician Use.” The raw scores on the 25 items should be summed to obtain a total raw score. The scores on the items within each trait domain should be summed and entered in the appropriate raw domain score box. In addition, the clinician is asked to calculate and use average scores for each domain and for the overall measure. The average scores reduce the overall score as well as the scores for each domain to a 4-point scale, which allows the clinician to think of the patient’s personality dysfunction relative to observed norms.¹ The average domain score is calculated by dividing the raw domain score by the number of items in the domain (e.g., if all the items within the “negative affect “ domain are rated as being “sometimes or somewhat true” then the average domain score would be 10/5 = 2, indicating moderate negative affect). The average total score is calculated by dividing the raw overall score by the total number of items in the measure (i.e., 25). The average domain and overall personality dysfunction scores were found to be reliable, easy to use, and clinically useful to the clinicians in the DSM-5 Field Trials.

Note: If 7 or more items are left unanswered on the measure (i.e., more than 25% of the total items are missing), the scores should not be calculated. Similarly, if 2 or more items are left unanswered on any one domain, the domain score should not be calculated. Therefore, the individual should be encouraged to complete all of the items on the measure. However, if 7 or more of the total items on the measure are left unanswered but 4 or 5 items for some of the domains are completed, the raw or average domain scores may be used for those domains. If for the overall measure 1 to 6 items are left unanswered, or for any domain only one item is left unanswered, you may prorate the total raw score or domain score by first summing the number of items that were answered to get a partial raw score. Next, multiply the partial raw score by the total number of items on the measure (i.e., 25) or in the domain (i.e., 5). Finally, divide the value by the number of items that were actually answered to obtain the prorated total or domain raw score.

$$\text{Prorated Score} = \frac{\text{Partial Raw Score} \times \text{number of items on the PID-5 BF}}{\text{Number of items that were actually answered}}$$

If the result is a fraction, round to the nearest whole number.

Frequency of Use

To track change in the severity of the individual’s personality dysfunction over time, it is recommended that the measure be completed at regular intervals as clinically indicated, depending on the stability of the individual’s symptoms and treatment status. Consistently high scores on a particular domain may indicate significant and problematic areas for the individual receiving care that might warrant further assessment, treatment, and follow-up. Your clinical judgment should guide your decision.
